Guided Tours by Hiroshima Peace Volunteers

From September 1, 2014, walking tours will not be provided within the museum, but Peace Volunteers will be able to explain certain exhibits within the museum as well as provide guided walking tours in Peace Memorial Park. The Peace Volunteers hope to make walking tours within the museum available as soon as possible after the grand reopening in 2018.

Listening to Survivors' Testimonies

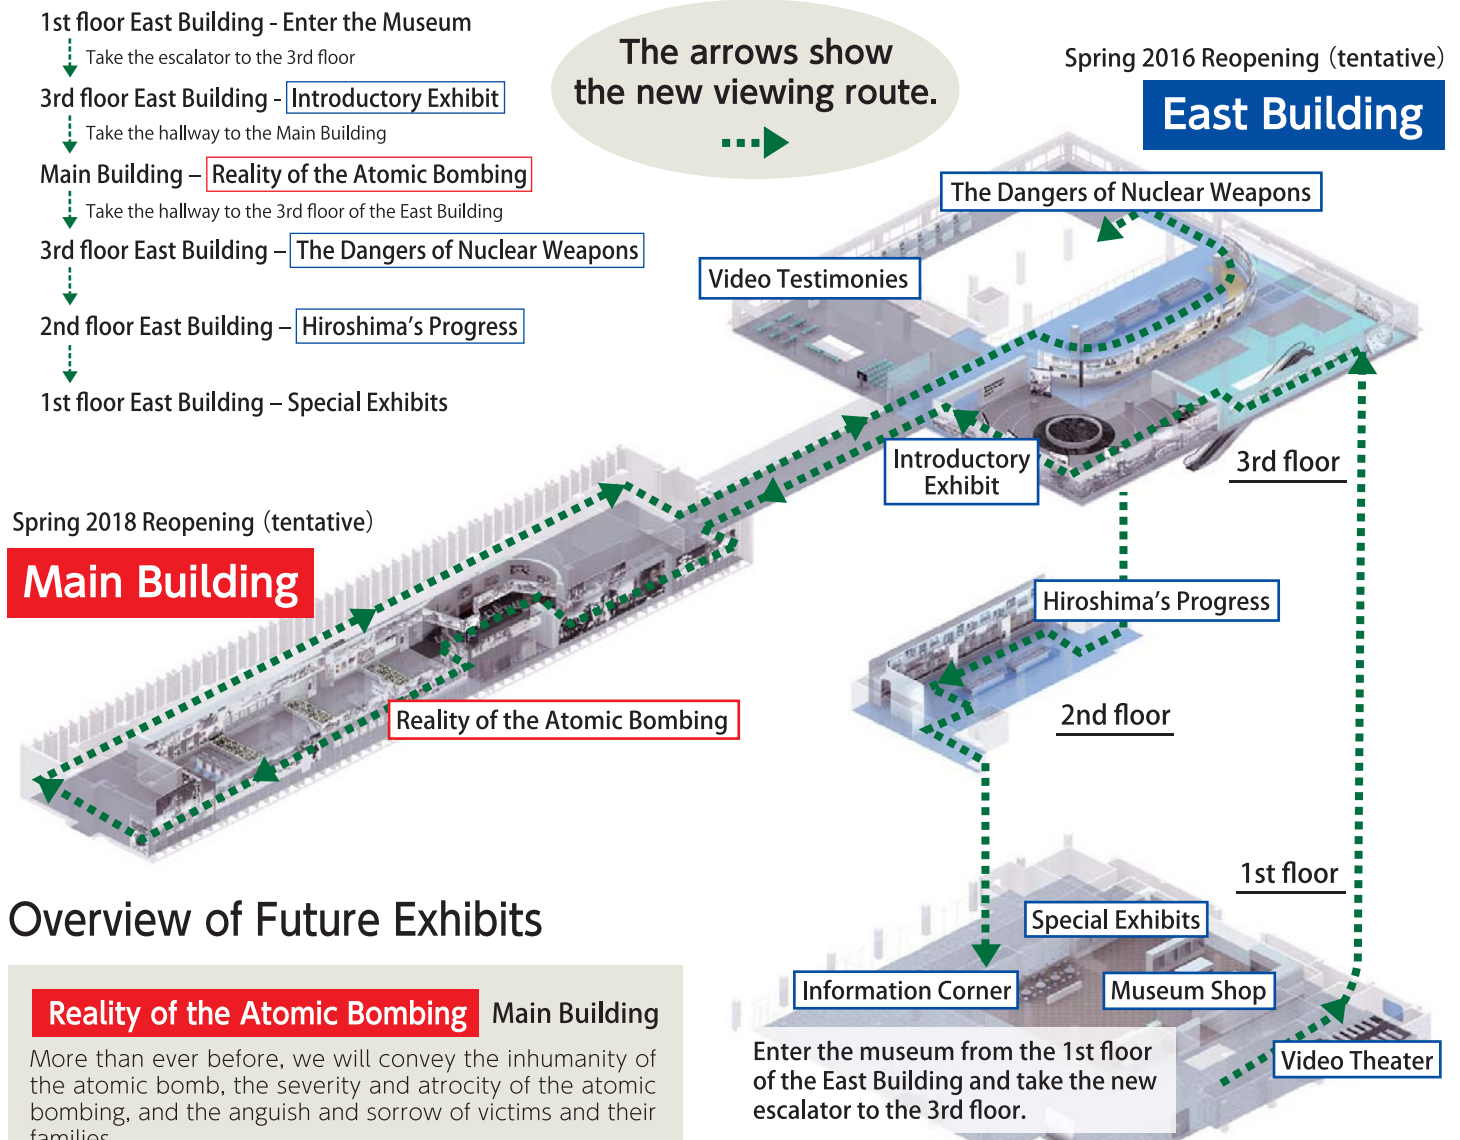

Since meeting rooms will not be available while the East Building is being renovated, rooms will be secured at the International Conference Center and other facilities when possible to provide opportunities to listen to survivors' testimonies.

Plans subject to change. See the opposite side for renovation details.

Grand Reopening Spring 2018 (tentative)

Comprehensive renovations at the Hiroshima Peace Memorial Museum

We will be making changes to the viewing route and renewing the contents of exhibits in order to make it easier to understand the reality of the atomic bombing.

Overview of Future Exhibits

Reality of the Atomic Bombing Main Building

More than ever before, we will convey the inhumanity of the atomic bomb, the severity and atrocity of the atomic bombing, and the anguish and sorrow of victims and their families.

- We will show how the city was simultaneously overcome by intense heat, shockwaves, and radiation, which brought about serious damage.
- We will emphasize exhibiting actual items that clearly convey the reality of the atomic bombing.
- We will display even more materials from the bombing that convey the many circumstances experienced then.

See the opposite side for the renovation schedule.

The Dangers of Nuclear Weapons 3rd floor East Building

We will convey the events leading up to the bombing and comment on the threat of atomic weapons, communicating the universal concern that the existence of nuclear weapons is a threat to all of humanity.

Hiroshima's Progress 2nd floor East Building

We will introduce Hiroshima's progress from the time of the war, through its recovery from unprecedented destruction, to its efforts as a city of peace.
